I. Program Description

A. Short Description of Funding Opportunity

ERDC seeks applications for developing a user-friendly decision-framework for evaluating ecosystem services of proposed water resource project alternatives and current federally managed lands and reservoirs.

B. Background

Measuring the value of ecosystem services is a way to assess multiple services or benefits that affect human health and happiness that are generated by ecosystems. Methods appropriate to evaluate ecosystem services for water resource project planning are largely lacking. Additionally, public lands, which also provide current ecosystem services, largely go unassessed and unaccounted for. A comprehensive, user-friendly decision support framework that can be used to estimate the value of ecosystem services from proposed projects or currently managed lands is needed. The proposed research will focus on 1) reviewing and determining metrics that can be used to measure the value of ecosystem services appropriate for water resource projects (i.e., ecosystem restoration) and public lands associated with water resource management (i.e., reservoirs), 2) developing a user-friendly decision support framework via a web-based portal that will estimate ecosystem services, and 3) preform an in-depth assessment of the value of ecosystem services provided by oyster reef restoration in and around the Gulf of Mexico.

C. Program Description/Objective: (brief description of the anticipated work)

This project will establish an interdisciplinary collaboration between USACE and a University partner. This collaboration will develop a decision-framework to measure the value of ecosystem services from current and proposed water resource projects delivered via a web-based portal. This decision support framework will enable planners and managers to enter a limited number of relevant criteria and parameters and receive an estimate for the value of various ecosystem services. Estimation of the value of ecosystem services for proposed projects may be positive or negative depending on proposed changes. Anticipated ecosystem services that will be valued may include: water quality, recreation, harvest, species protection, wetland protection, carbon sequestration, open space, and flood protection. Successful proposals will also (a) clearly identify question(s) the proposed project will seek to answer (i.e., project technical objectives); (b) clearly describe the tasks and data required to answer those question(s) (i.e., data quality objectives); and (c) describe envisioned project deliverables by task and by year. Proposals that demonstrate intent to maximize use of existing federal and other organizations ecosystem services programs, initiatives and data are encouraged. Successful proposals will identify quantitative and qualitative success criteria for each project task and objective; identification of go/no-go decision points at the end of each year is also encouraged.

This project will:

- 1) Review and determine appropriate metrics to measure the value of ecosystem services that capture appropriate aspects of proposed water resource projects and currently public lands associated with water resource management.
- 2) Estimates of the value of ecosystem services (quantitative and semi-quantitative) will be derived from the best available data in the environmental economics literature through a thorough review of the relevant literature and meta-analyses that allow for more accurate transfer of estimate values in the literature to projects.
- 3) Develop and test an ecosystem services evaluation decision support framework.
- 4) Deliver ecosystem services evaluation decision support framework via web-based portal.
- 5) Perform an in-depth assessment of the value of ecosystem services that are generated from oyster reef restoration using economic experiments and/or other methods.

Findings will be reported to the public through technical reports, technical notes, journal articles, presentations, attendance of In Progress Reviews, as appropriate and needed.

D. Public Benefit

A more robust assessment of the economic, environmental and social benefits of public lands managed in association water resource management is needed in order to make effective decisions regarding their management and operations. Results of this research will support the planning and management decision processes, saving public tax dollars and maximizing the public benefit of these lands and waters.

E. Authorization: 10 USC 4001

At our discretion, we may ask you for a conflict-of-interest mitigation plan after you submit your application. Your plan is subject to our approval.

b) Scientific Conflict of Interest

Scientific collaborations on research and development projects are generally the result of close collaboration prior to the submission of applications for support. Accordingly, these collaborations should be considered when considering potential conflicts of interest. The potential conflict is mitigated by the disclosure of these collaborations, and the list of current and pending support you provide for senior and key researchers. Therefore, you must include in your list of current and pending support all collaborators, even if they did not formally provide support.

V. Application Review Information

A. Selection Criteria

Applications will be evaluated using the following criteria, listed in descending order of importance:

- Technical merits of the proposed research and development;
- Potential relationship of the proposed research and development to Department of Defense missions;
- Experience evaluating ecosystem services

B. Review and Selection Process:

Each application will be reviewed based on the selection criteria above rather than against other applications submitted under this Announcement.

Based on the Peer or Scientific Review, proposals will be categorized as Selectable or Not Selectable (see definitions below). The selection of the source for award will be based on the Peer or Scientific Review, as well as importance to agency programs and funding availability.

- i. Selectable: Proposals are recommended for acceptance if sufficient funding is available.
- ii. Not Selectable: Even if sufficient funding existed, the proposal should not be funded.

Note: The Government reserves the right to award some, all, or none of proposals. When the Government elects to award only a part of a proposal, the selected part may be categorized as Selectable, though the proposal as a whole may not merit such a categorization.

In addition to the technical/program review, the DoD performs a budget review and a risk review as directed by 2 CFR 200.206, including a review of the Federal Awardee Performance and Integrity Information System (FAPIIS). Applicants may review information in FAPIIS and comment on any information entered into that system. Comments made by applicants will be taken into account in addition to other information in considering applicants' integrity, business ethics, and record of performance.

VI. Federal Award Administration Information

The notification e-mail regarding a selection is not authorization to commit or expend DoD funds. A DoD grants officer is the only person authorized to obligate and approve the use of federal funds. This authorization is in the form of a signed Notice of Award. Applicants whose applications are recommended will be contacted by a DoD grants officer to discuss any additional information required for award. This may include representations and certifications, revised budgets or budget explanations, or other information as applicable to the proposed award. The award start date will be determined at this time.
